International Symposium

New Dynamics of Scientific Research in the Development of Society

Scientific activity and its results are spread throughout the world and across all major areas of social life. Science is developing in both rich and poor countries. Within the framework of the modern globalization processes, it is possible to talk about at least four models of scientific knowledge production:

- 1) model of the advanced West;
- 2) model of engineering-oriented Asia;
- 3) strict hierarchical model of the post-Soviet countries;
- 4) model of catching up science of developing countries.

Working languages:

- English
- Russian

Main Issues for Discussion

- Internationalization of science.
- Megascience: International laboratories and scientific projects.
- Science and business.
- Implementation and impact of scientific research in the development of society.
- Methods of financing scientific activities, evaluation of the effectiveness of scientific activities.
