

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTIONS AND POLITICAL PROCESSES

M.A. IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

PROGRAM ADVANTAGES

- ✓ The program «International Institutions and Political Processes» is a set of complementary disciplines that systematize the study of relations between countries as a whole, including the role of states, governmental and non-governmental organizations, both in politics and in international law, education and economy.
- ✓ The program is aimed at creating theoretical and practical competencies for understanding and solving the main international problems of the 21st century and preparing graduate students for a wide range of professional activities in the field of international process management, advising on issues of politics, business and science at the national and international levels.
- ✓ This program, focused on researching problems of international institutions and political processes, is designed to give graduate students the knowledge and skills necessary for a successful career in government and diplomacy, international business, international governmental and non-governmental organizations.

- ✓ Unlike others, the program involves combined training with practice that considerably increases the effectiveness and productivity of the educational process.
- ✓ This combination of theory and practice allows not only to acquire the skills of researching international processes, but also to master leadership methods in order to lead international teams of any scale.
- ✓ The implementation of the program “International Institutions and Political Processes” is ensured by the participation of professors with extensive practical experience in higher government bodies and international organizations.
- ✓ As a result of the “International Institutions and Political Processes” MA Program graduate obtains a master’s degree of national standard, as well as Master’s Diploma Supplement, unified according to the European model.

STUDYING PROCCCESS

120 ECTS credits.

Lectures, workshops, several types of practice.

MEGATRENDS AND GLOBAL PROBLEMS

- Formation of a new structure of international relations and a new international order.
- Globalization and regionalization, as features of the development of the international system in the XXI century.
- Legal instruments for regulating world politics in the face of new challenges.

THE PROBLEM OF IDENTITY IN WORLD POLITICAL PROCESSES

- The identity of the subject of world politics and its significance for international processes.
- International actors: from searching to creating a new identity.
- Phenomenology of identity of international actors: ethnic, state, confessional, regional types of identity.
- The problem of changing identification priorities in world politics.
- Modern subjects of world politics and identification processes.

GLOBAL MANAGEMENT INSTITUTIONS

- Global governance: basic concepts and approaches, global power and global governance.
- Composition of subjects of global governance, problems of legitimacy in world politics.
- World development as the main object of global governance.
- Global governance institutions, international organizations, global civil society.

INSTITUTE OF EDUCATION IN INTERNATIONAL PROCESSES

- Institute of education and cross-border processes in world politics.
- Integrative value of international educational processes.
- Place of education in the information society.
- Foreign policy component of the internationalization of education.
- Institute of education as an instrument of “soft power” and its prospects.

DIPLOMACY AND THE MODERN DIPLOMATIC SYSTEM

- Diplomacy as an institution and an instrument of foreign policy.
- The place of diplomacy in modern international relations.
- New trends of the modern diplomatic system.
- New areas of diplomacy: multilateral diplomacy, informal diplomacy, energy diplomacy.
- Practical aspects of diplomacy negotiation process, protocol, etiquette.

ANALYSIS OF INTERNATIONAL SITUATIONS

- Analytical study of world politics.
- The definition of actors and the establishment of their relations in the context of conflict processes.
- Identification of the problem field in the case study.
- Situational analysis.
- Construction of prognostic hypotheses for the development of international processes.
- Forecasting, modelling and simulation.

STUDENTS FEEDBACK

IRINA KARAPETYAN (RUSSIA)

“ Studying at the master’s program of the evening department of the faculty of humanities and social sciences will remain one of the brightest pages in my life. I often recall how interesting and informative it was. During lectures and seminars, I received a lot of useful information about the specifics of world politics and functioning of international organizations, which helps me a lot in my work. Thanks to the teachers for the constant motivation of students to self-development and focus on high achievements. ”

SAMI JUBARRALLA (SUDAN)

“ The evening department has a very convenient organization of the educational process, which makes it easy to combine work with classes. I want to express my gratitude for the informative and interesting courses. I really liked the modern form of presentation of material by training modules. Many thanks to all the faculty for the desire to make learning not only useful, but also interesting. Thank you for the valuable experience I received at the university, for the individual approach to each student, patience and responsibility. During the training, I received all the knowledge and competencies necessary for me in my current work. Thank you very much for your work and engagement! ”

ACADEMIC DIRECTOR OF THE PROGRAMME

SHABAGA ANDREY VLADIMIROVICH

Doctor of Science (Philosophy), Professor, Department of Theory and History of International Relations

Author of more than 80 books and scientific publications in the field of theory of international relations, sociology and history.